

Union complements our other institutions

Dear editor,

Regarding Shams Mir's article advocating the need for a British veterinary union (February 2 issue), I would like to state that I view this as a long overdue and necessary step in the evolution of our great profession. In my view, it should not be divisive, but should rather be seen as complementary to existing institutions, which for a variety of reasons are unable to adequately and completely fulfil such an ambitious, necessary and worthy role. "Fortitudine vincimus" or by endurance we conquer.

Yours faithfully,

NORMAN W LESLIE, BA, MVB, MRCVS,

55 Cambridge Avenue,

Marton-in-Cleveland,

Middlesbrough TS7 8EG.

VT 39(7): 39

23.02.09